To Whom It May Concern:

I have known American Restoration for a number of years, and have worked directly with them for the past three years. The most recent project related to a one-year Parapet and Terra Cotta restoration project on the historic Union Station building in Dallas, Texas.

American Restoration did an excellent job on this project. The entire project was well planned, well managed, and well executed. Throughout the duration of the project, American Restoration remained on schedule, completing work as defined in the Production Schedule and the Schedule of Values. As importantly, high levels of safety and quality control standards were maintained throughout the project.

American Restoration is an industry leader, experienced, and a highly professional organization. They were a "team player" on this project, which greatly contributed to effective communication and overall project success.

It is a pleasure to have a business relationship with American Restoration. I look forward to working with them on other building projects in the future.

I highly recommend them to any other building owners for exterior restoration and preservation services.

Sincerely,
